

God Knows Best

The way I'm feeling now words could not explain The hole left in my heart is filled with so much pain I long to see your face again or just to hear your voice Yet I know he makes no mistakes and he has made his choice For God knows best, your labors done and he has called you home But long as I have good memories I'll never be alone.

Hector & Geraldine

The two of them seemed to be an incredible team through good times and bad even though at this moment I know Geraldine you are sad because your beloved Hector has departed, remember the love of Jesus will eventually make your heart glad.

Hold on to God's unchanging hand for that is the only way to be able to withstand the pain in your heart.
